10. [] In response to his earlier request, I provided Jay Sourwine, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, with the correct spelling and pronunciation of the names of [] and [] Sourwine also said he would like to confirm that [] was []

[] After checking on this, I advised Sourwine that, while we did not regard this as open information, the information he had received to this effect was accurate. Sourwine commented that he was preparing something for Senator Eastland on this, presumably for his use on the floor. In response to my query, Sourwine said the nature of the material he was preparing for Senator Eastland was to the effect that if the State Department had been notified of [] entry in advance, there should be some explanation; if they had not, then this indicated that the Soviets were not following procedures which have presumably been in effect for sometime and is an indication that they would not be inclined to follow similar procedures under the Consular Treaty. This information has been passed on to SB Division for their information.

11. [] Was advised by the office of Congressmen Zwach and Button of their regrets but that they will not be able to attend the breakfast briefing tomorrow.

12. [] Escorted Messrs. Ernest C. Baynard, Richard Berman, and Frank Bosellino, of the Government Activities Subcommittee staff, on a visit to the Agency building for the purpose of obtaining paint chips from the interior of the Headquarters building. The actual sampling was conducted under the jurisdiction of Mr. Van Weaver, the PBS building manager. Mr. Weaver, Mr. Fred Bayne (the paint foreman), and [] (Logistics) also joined the group. While at Headquarters Mr. Baynard learned from Fred Bayne that a GSA representative had, within the month, taken a large number of chips from the walls. A follow-up call on this by Mr. Baynard was reported as finding that a large number of the chips reveal only one coat of paint. Mr. Baynard said he would be in touch with us as matters unfolded. See memorandum for the record.

13. [] Stopped by the office of Congressman Eckhardt and dropped off a map for his use in driving out to the Agency tomorrow morning for the breakfast briefing.
